

Imagine how life would be for you and me if everyone on earth had a learning disability Hmm ... let's take a look and see what life is like for Daniele Lahlee ...

The story, Daniele Lahlee, is a narrative film for children of all ages. We follow the struggles of the main character, Daniele, as she tries to read. Daniele is visited by a magical book that lets her rid the world of vowels. At first, she is overcome with joy but, slowly, she realizes that the world can't function without vowels.

The story is set to Dr. Seuss style poetry as well as unique live action visuals that actually show how life can be for a person with a learning disability. The visuals are filmed in such a way that they may aid children, adults, teachers, and even psychologists in describing certain learning disabilities in a visual way.

Daniele Lahlee is a 6min 40sec 16mm film that was written and directed by Tama Gempton. It is available on 16mm print, NTSC Beta SP and NTSC VHS. It is the goal of Tama Gempton to make this film available to schools, libraries, and anybody interested in understanding more about learning disabilities.
